St John SA

is a charity that has been supporting the South Australian community through first aid and community services for over 135 years. An extensive team of dedicated and highly skilled volunteers across the State carry out our charitable work every day. This community support has continued during some of the most challenging times in modern history.

The South Australian community has been experiencing some of its greatest health challenges to date. Whilst recovering from a devastating bushfire season in 2019/20, COVID-19 has placed enormous strain on our emergency services network and threatened health care within the SA community.

As has been the case for 135 years, St John SA volunteers have been there to lend a hand. But, it has taken a serious toll on our charity. Hundreds of St John SA volunteers provided critical first aid support for firefighters and locals, around the clock, treating burns and smoke inhalation, providing eye irrigation and more. On many occasions, the treatment and care from these volunteers was the difference between life and death for our heroic firefighters. Stories and scenes from the bushfires have stayed with our volunteers long after the fires were out. Despite the challenging circumstances, our volunteers continued to be there for the South Australian community.

Recovering from this effort, the St John SA volunteers found themselves almost immediately presented with the daunting task of supporting the entire community as it stared down the prospect of a life-threatening global pandemic.

As you may appreciate, the pandemic has had a devastating effect across our organisation, St John SA is a self-funded charity and the pandemic has materially impacted our ability to provide commercial first aid training.

Every dollar raised through this training goes directly towards supporting our volunteers and their lifesaving work in the community. The pandemic itself forced many of our volunteers with prevailing health concerns to focus upon their own health and that of their family.

Despite these challenges, our volunteers have continued to step forward in great numbers and served selflessly to protect the lives of South Australians.

This year's support goes beyond the 20,000 patients treated by our volunteers at events across the state, treatments that prevent hospital presentations and ensure hospital beds were available to critical care.

This year was so much more. Supporting COVID-19 screening activities and deploying crews in support of SA Health, our volunteers continued to place themselves on the frontline to serve and protect the health of everyone in South Australia.

A St John SA volunteer is a rare individual - they undertake hundreds of hours in training to ensuring that if you need lifesaving help, they will be there.

Your support of this lottery assists us in recruiting and training new St John volunteers that will continue to protect and save lives in the South Australian community.
